

THE TOWN CRIER

Goings-on from the town of Frosthaven

A Twist of Fate

Beyond the reach of Frosthaven's influence, a peculiar encounter awaited the Minions—a clearing housing an enigmatic slot machine and a seemingly out-of-place Inox clad in ill-fitting attire. They opted to insist on peeking inside the machine, aided by the persuasive Sister Mary. Granting their request with a shrug, the Inox revealed a chaotic array of chains and pulleys within. Determined to uncover its secrets, the Minions learned the intricacies of the contraption.

As the lever was pulled, anticipation filled the air, and one by one, the Minions experienced the thrill of victory. Their rewards, though modest, proved the fruit of their audacious curiosity, with the exception of CraigHeart, who didn't find fortune on this occasion. The Slot Sanctum remains shrouded in mystery, teasing the denizens of Frosthaven with its potential riches. Will further explorations yield greater fortunes, or is the true reward yet to be unveiled?

A Triumph Over Ice and Adversity

Facing biting winds and treacherous terrain, the Minions fought their way up the mountain, determined to reach the Snowspeakers before irreversible damage was done. With limbs burning and minds fogged by the relentless cold, they carved their path, inch by frozen inch. Finally, atop the summit, they discovered a hidden frozen plateau, but their arrival was met with a chilling welcome. An ancient Algox Stormcaller, flanked by demonic forces, vowed the cult's victory and unleashed the mountain's own energy against them. Undeterred, the Minions charged forward.

In a fierce battle, they overcame the Algox, but her final words hung ominously in the air. As they rappelled down, the mountain trembled, leaving them racing against time and praying for Snowscorn's stability.

Stay tuned, as we follow Zoey's Minions on their perilous descent from Snowscorn Peak. The fate of Frosthaven teeters on the edge, and only their unwavering determination can secure our town's survival.