

THE TOWN CRIER

Goings-on from the town of Frosthaven

Corpsecap Harvest Coming Soon?

Zoey's Minions recently encountered a familiar cave filled with rows of corpsecap, a valuable crop in the damp environment. Instead of harvesting the crop immediately, the group opted to take only a few cuttings and allow the mushrooms to grow longer for a stronger harvest in the future.

A Risky Bet!

During a quick stop at The Crater, Zoey's Minions encountered Xain who offered them a chance to bet on their success for their next mission. They chose to bet 10 gold each on their success, despite the odds, for a chance to double their bets if they are successful.

New Wall

Wall J, has been constructed in the northern section of Frosthaven increasing the town's defense.

Mysterious Orb Destroyed in Temple Showdown

Zoey's Minions recently delved into the Copperneck Mountains, where they discovered the Temple of Liberation. The group made their way through the long, winding stone hallways, which eventually led them to a massive chamber dominated by a humming yellow orb at its center. The room was filled with mechanical creatures of various shapes and sizes, who quickly turned hostile, and the group was forced to fight their way through the swarm to reach the orb. Despite the odds, Zoey's Minions managed to destroy the orb, causing the machines to seize up and fall to the ground. The door forward, however, was secured by a complex mechanism consisting of a large ring with six smaller circular plates. The group attempted to turn the plates into different positions to unlock the door but despite their efforts, the door remained firmly shut. Zoey's Minions will continue to explore the Temple of Liberation, determined to find a way forward and uncover the secrets hidden within its walls. Stay tuned for further updates on their adventures.
